I'm from Croatia and I have been living in Mexico for the last eight years.

I have nearly a decade of experience in online marketing and during my career I have worn many different hats: social media manager customer support manager and content creator of various types videos blogs social media posts public statements emails promotional materials press releases etc..

I have helped build numerous brands from the ground up which included branding creating long-term strategies hiring teams on Upwork and Fiverr managing those teams and building and maintaining websites.

I am fully qualified for this position and can hit the ground running. I have a proven track record that I will demonstrate here by linking some of my recent work.

Currently I'm writing blogs for Eric Javits a very popular US-based fashion brand. All of my content ranks on the first page of Google search at least for a while. I use Ahrefs to monitor the performance of my work.

I also maintain Eric Javits and Dario Markovic's websites. I'll link them in the "poveznice" section.

Thank you for taking the time to consider this proposal.
